Softly rubbing her swelling belly, Makenzie sighed as she now faced the difficult decision of telling her mother that she broke her promise to abstain from sex in this new universe until she was at least eighteen. And not just once. It had been six years since her mother brought her to live in the Anthroverse – a universe where the dominant species on earth, or Omevia as the natives call it were anthropomorphic animals. She instantly befriended a fox girl named Akina and through her made friends with so many others. Some were more on the Omevian side in their appearance, others looked mostly human save for tails, animalistic ears and very fine coats of fur hinting at their mixed heritage.

In those six years she saw her older sister Nicole’s love for her Omevian mate Shoka only deepen. She saw their mother finding love for the first time that she could remember with Menzax – an Omevian man that looked very much like a humanoid wolf. She watched her sister going through three pregnancies resulting in the birth of nine children and her mother going through four pregnancies resulting in thirteen. Like any older sister, she showered her younger siblings with all the love and attention they deserved. She wore to her mother, promised on her life that she would not even think about starting a family of her own until she was at least old enough to be considered an adult.

Looking down at the medical chip implanted in her right wrist, she sighed again. I just hope she can forgive me, she thought as she stepped away from the mirror. After putting some clothes on, she walked out of her bedroom and was immediately jumped on by her four-year-old triplet brothers Takara, Katsuro and Hisoka. Lightly booping Katsuro on his wolf-like nose, she picked Hisoka up over her head, carried him to the couch and made as if to slam him onto it only to give him a gently drop at the last second causing him to giggle “Again!” Hisoka exclaimed.

“Not right now, bud. I need to talk to mom. Is she around somewhere?”

“In here sweetie,” Brooke called out from the kitchen.

Rubbing her little brother’s furry belly, Makenzie took a deep breath and slowly exhaled as she walked into the kitchen where her mother and father were preparing sandwiches for lunch. She never had a father back on earth. It felt weird calling a wolf-man dad in the beginning, but Menzax had time and again proven himself more than worthy of the title. “Hey mom, hey dad. Can we talk?”

“Give us a minute to finish here and we’re all yours.”

“O-Okay.”

“I think she needs to talk now,” Menzax said, seeing the terrified look on his adopted daughter’s face. “Is everything okay?”

“I... no. No it isn’t. I’ve hid the truth for as long as possible, but I’m sure you’ve both notice I’ve been putting on weight the last month or so. I never meant for it to happen. Kaede and I... he... we... I... he wanted to kiss me and I wanted him to kiss me and we kissed and then we were touching each other and then... I never meant for things to go so far. Mom, I swear. W-W-We had sex and now I’m pregnant and you probably hate me and...” Unable to go on, Makenzie dropped to her knees and cried.

“I’ll finish up here,” Menzax said.

“Thanks babe.” Kneeling on the kitchen floor, Brooke took her daughter’s hands in her own. “Sshhh... It’s okay,” she said, pulling her into a tight hug. “Your father and I love you and nothing will ever change that. Are you sure your pregnant?”

“Y-Yes. T-T-The chip says I’m t-thirteen weeks. But that’s not all,” Makenzie said as she slumped into her mother’s shoulder. “I’m not just having a baby, mom. I’m having seven. I’m pregnant with an entire freaking litter! What am I going to do? How am I going to take care of seven babies when I don’t even have a job or a place of my own?”

Sitting back, Brooke held her daughter’s hands in her own. “First things first. Does Kaede know you’re pregnant and are you certain he’s the father?”

“Y-Yes. He’s the only boy I’ve ever been with.”

“The only boy. Have you been with girls as well? It’s okay, you can be honest.”

“Y-Yes. I thought it would be safer since they couldn’t get me pregnant.”

“Fair enough. I know you might be feeling otherwise right now, but this isn’t the end of the world. Yes, I would’ve preferred you waited a few more years to have children but you’re hardly the first fifteen-year-old to get pregnant and you certainly won’t be the last. How did Kaede take the news?”

“He’s as scared as I am but promised to help take care of them the best he can. He started working in his mom’s bakery to save money so we could get a place together when you threw me out for being a whore.”

“I don’t ever want to hear that word coming out of your mouth again young lady. It’s honorable of him to want to take care of his children, but I think getting your own place is a bit premature. Neither of you have even finished school or even learned to drive. How do you expect to get around or earn enough to pay for even your basic needs? No, you’ll stay at home until you graduate and then you’ll get yourself a job.”

“We both can’t work, mom. Who’s going to watch the babies?”

“We will. Or Nicole. Or maybe one of your friend will babysit. We can figure all that out later. What matters right now is that you understand you have a strong support system that is here for you whenever you need us.”

“You don’t hate me for lying to you?”

“I’m not going to lie, Makenzie. I’m disappointed that you couldn’t wait a few more years, but I don’t hate you.”

“If I may,” Menzax cut in again. “They really should start learning how to run a household sooner rather than later and I think I have the perfect solution to keeping them home while also giving them the privacy and independence a growing family needs. The guest house. They can live in it while remaining on the property. And to give them a glimpse into what being out on their own is going to look like, we can charge them a small amount for rent and utilities. And since she insists on being a two-job family I’ll hire her at the groomers so she can help contribute to their bills.”

“That’s actually an excellent idea,” Brooke replied. “Now, there’s just one thing that’s nagging me. How did you end up pregnant, Makenzie?”

“Um…”

“Let me put it another way. That device implanted in your left wrist – the one controlling every system in your body, was set to act as birth control until your eighteenth birthday and given that it is one hundred percent effective the only way you could possibly become pregnant is if it somehow failed, which is impossible given that you’re still alive, or you purposefully deactivated the birth control feature. Care to explain yourself young lady?”

“I didn’t deactivate it mom. You did.”

“I did no such thing.”

“Um, actually, I think you did. Not on purpose, mind you, but you did give the command for it to be deactivated.”

“Sweetie, I think I’d remember telling your implant to stop acting as birth control. Now, I want to know how you managed to get into the subsystems to deactivate it and don’t lie to me again or you’ll be disciplined.”

“I’m not lying! The thing is voice locked until I’m eighteen. It wouldn’t listen to me even if I did tell it what to do. You’re the only one in the entire multiverse capable of issuing it commands and I think it happened right around the time you deactivated yours before getting pregnant with Kaori and Azora. I was walking by your room when you said the command. I heard my implant say ‘birth control feature deactivated’ right after. I probably should’ve said something then, but I was only twelve and sex was the last thing on my mind so I just went to the bathroom and then went to bed and forgot about it until it happened. I thought I was going crazy, mom. I thought the medical chip was faulty or something but after hundreds of diagnostic checks I had to accept it was telling the truth.”

“Activate birth control feature,” Brooke said as she stared into her daughter’s eyes.

“Unable to activate birth control function at this time,” The female voice of the AI controlling her implant spoke.

“Um, it just said, and I quite: ‘unable to activate birth control function at this time’. “Why won’t it activate?”

“Mine activated again because I’m not pregnant,” Brooke explained. “Yours failed to activate because you are. Nicole and I are going to have to implement better protocols to prevent such things from happening in the future. Why we didn’t think to make the implant’s ID part of the command structure is a failing on our part and for that I apologize.”

“So, what you’re saying is that if Kaede hadn’t impregnated me you never would’ve know about the flaw?”

“Correct.”

“Then I guess it’s a good thing I couldn’t resist him,” Makenzie blushed. “Are you really not mad at me?”

“Not even in the slightest. Come on, lets go eat lunch and then we can go have a talk with Kaede and his parents about all of this.”

“Yes Ma’am.” Shocked that her mother and adopted father took the news so lightly, Makenzie’s mood brightened considerably. “Please don’t be mad at him. Yes, he got me pregnant, but it never would’ve happened if I didn’t have sex with him in the first place. Or the hundreds of times leading up to my pregnancy.”

“Hundreds of times?” her mother asked.

“I don’t want to talk about it, mom.” The silent stare she got made her heart skip a beat. “We’ve been having sex four or five times a day for the last six months. Now can we please not talk about it anymore?”

When Kaede heard that he and his parents had been invited to his girlfriend’s house his heart sank in his chest. After months of hiding the truth, he knew it was about to put out there for all to hear even if his parents said nothing about the nature of the sudden invitation. Arriving shortly after three, he and Makenzie shared a knowing glance before awkwardly looking away from each other.

“Thank you for coming on such short notice,” Brooke said as she closed the door behind her guests.

“No problem,” Kaede’s mother Naoko replied. “Honestly, we’ll take any excuse to get out of the house and what better excuse is there than spending an afternoon with friends?”

“I can think of a few, but hanging out with friends is at least in the top five,” Menzax replied.

“I wish it were on different terms, but we actually have something very important to talk to you about,” Brooke said. The looks on her guest’s faces told her they had no idea what she was talking about. “Please, have a seat. Can I get you anything to drink?”

“Um, now that it’s suddenly sounding very serious I think I’d like to know the nature of this invite,” Kaede’s father Hakizru said.

“Makenzie, would you like to tell them?”

“Actually, I think I should be the one to tell my parents, Kaede cut in. “Mom, dad, Makenzie is pregnant and I’m the father.”

“If you brought us here to blame our son for...” Naoko said before being cut off.

“Whoa! Calm down,” Brooke interrupted what was sure to be a tirade. “No one is blaming anyone for anything. We asked the three of you here because Makenzie said Kaede has stepped up and gotten a job so that he can be a good father and provide for their children. Is that true?”

“Yes Ma’am,” Kaede answered.

“So you expect our son to be the sole source of income while your daughter does what?”

“I’m getting a job as well,” Makenzie answered. “And I’ll work for as long as I can and then go back after our children are born.”

“Look, the bottom line is, both of our kids did something stupid, but to their credit they’re both also willing to step up and do what it takes to be the parents their children deserve. I am a firm believer in family unity so to that end I’d like to make a proposal. We have a guest house on the back of the property that is currently just sitting empty. Menzax and I would like our daughter and your son to move in there together. They’ll of course continue going to school and working what hours they can to save up for their own place, but we’ll be charging them a small amount for rent and utilities so they get a hang of it before going out on their own. Now, I know what you’re thinking and before you start tossing out more baseless accusations, know that we will not be keeping any of the money for ourselves. Should they graduate it’ll be returned to them with interest. And should they both graduate with honors we’ll quintuple the amount so they have at least something to fall back on while looking for better jobs. All we really want and need is your consent to allow Kaede to live here with her.”

“Kaede?” his father said.

“I love her more than anything in this world dad. I know we’re too young for it to be official but I’ll say it anyways. I want to spend the rest of my life with her. I want Makenzie to be my life mate.”

Hearing those words brought a happiness to Makenzie’s heart she never knew was possible. Running across the living room, she threw her arms around him and hugged him tight, her cheek brushing against the fur of his canine-like snout. “I love you too! And the answer is yes!”

“Well, I think actions speak louder than words so you have my blessing,” Hakizru said.

“I think they’re far too young to be living alone together and should instead concentrate on their studies away from each other but...”

“MOM!” Kaede angrily growled.

“Let me finish. I think it’s a very bad idea but I can clearly see the love they have for each other so against my better judgement I give you my blessing. But only on the condition we may drop in on them at any time without warning.”

“Granted,” Brooke replied.

“Um, mom, don’t you think that should be our choice?” Makenzie asked.

“Not if you want this to happen. Besides, they won’t be the only parents checking to make sure you’re not doing anything stupid.”

“Yes Ma’am.”

“Then it’s settled. Once Makenzie has a job and is earning herself some money we’ll sit down and figure out a fair amount to charge them. For transparency sake you’ll have access to see the amount in the account but only I will have the authority to make deposits or withdraws. That way, if there are any discrepancies there’s only one person to blame. If we’re all in agreement then the two of you have packing to do.”

“I agree,” Kaede and Makenzie said in unison.

“Come on son, let’s go home and pack,” Hakizru said as he clapped a hand onto Kaede’s shoulder. “Assuming the place is ready to move into now that is.”

“It is,” Menzax answered. “We only have two keys so we’ll give one to Makenzie now and have more made by the time you get back.”

“Seeing her life mate and his parents turning to leave, Makenzie quickly walked over to them. “Wait.” When they turned to see what she wanted, she gave Naoko a tight hug. She then gave Hakizru a hug. “Thank you so much for being so understanding and allowing Kaede and I to remain together despite our stupid mistake. Words really can’t express how grateful I am to you both.”

“Just see that you get good grades and graduate so you can provide for your family,” Hakizru said as he stepped back from the awkwardly long embrace.

“I’ll study hard every day, Sir.”

“As will I,” Kaede added. “I don’t have a whole lot of stuff so packing shouldn’t take long. I’ll see you later.”

“See you later.” Watching the love of her life walk out of the house, Makenzie turned to her parents. “None of this would be possible without your generosity and understanding so from the bottom of my heart, thank you. Are you really going to give the money we pay you back?”

“That’s the plan. Assuming you graduate. And I meant what I said. We’ll quintuple it if you both graduate with honors. If we only charged you, say, two hundred credits a month that amounts to forty-eight-hundred after two years and twenty-four-thousand if you both graduate with honors. If that’s not motivation enough to do well in school then I don’t know what is.”

“Like I said, I’m going to study hard every day and I’ll make sure Kaede does as well. If not for the money then so we can get better jobs and a place of our own.” Giving her parents quick hugs, Makenzie ran off to her room to begin packing, her head spinning from the rush of endorphins and adrenaline surging through her body. As soon as she was in her bedroom she closed her eyes and thought call Nicole and then opened them just in time to see an eight-inch-tall holographic image of her older sister wearing only a towel, long brown hair hanging loose and wet as if she had just gotten out of the shower.

“Sorry, did I call at a bad time?” Makenzie thought back.

“It’s never a bad time for you.”

"Aawww, aren't you sweet."

"That's what Shoka tells me," Nicole internally grinned.

"Eewww! Come on, I don't need to hear about your sex life."

"Really? You're going to ack as if I'm gross for doing what I caught you and Akina doing?"

"Anyways, I've got good news and bad news which would you like to hear first?"

"Um, I guess the bad news."

"You, Shoka and the kids won't be able to stay in the guest house for a while."

"Oh? And why is that?"

"That's the good news. Well, it was bad news, but mom and dad made it amazing news actually. You know my friend Kaede?"

"Is he the cute canine boy with the black and brown fur?"

"Yeah, that's him. He got me pregnant, sis! I'm having his babies! I thought mom was going to kill me for breaking my promise to her but she and dad were so understanding and basically asked his parents for permission for us to live together in the guest house. And he said he wants me as his life mate!"

"Congratulations!"

"Thanks."

"That being said, are you out of your damn mind? What were you thinking getting pregnant at your age? Wait, how is that even possible? Your implant..."

"Was accidentally deactivated when mom deactivated the birth control function of hers. She said she's going to talk to you about adding the device ID as part of the command function."

"Yeah, probably should've done that years ago. So, do you know how many babies you're having?"

"I'm having septuplets."

"WOW! A whole freaking litter of what I'm sure will be very cute little puppies."

"I didn't tell mom or Kaede this, but I'm scared out of my mind, sis. I mean, I can probably handle one or two, but seven? What if I screw up? What if..."

"HEY! You stop that right now young lady. You've probably already heard this from mom and dad, but you're not alone. We're all here for you no matter the need or time of day. If you're feeling overwhelmed you call me and I'll come right over. Besides, if we can take care of a dozen kids each then I'm sure you'll be fine. But if not, you call one of us for help."

"Thanks, sis. Speaking of kids, how's yours doing?"

"They're doing great. Elora, Ginyka and Nyza are starting school next week so Shoka and I have been prepping them for that."

"I bet Elora's thrilled. I mean, what school going to teach a nearly two-billion-year-old energy being from another universe?"

"She's no longer a two-billion-year-old energy being, sis. She's a living, breathing flesh and blood girl just like you and given that her former life has been suppressed to save her brain from melting from an overload of knowledge, school can teach her a lot. Anyways, congratulations again on the pregnancy, but Shoka and I are going out and I need to finish getting ready so I'll talk to you later."

"Thanks. Love you."

"Love you too. And remember, if you need anything, call."

"I will. Talk to you later."

"Bye."
